Reign of the Common People.

The lecture to-night at Music Hall by Rev. Henry Ward Beecher on the above subject should attract a full house, as great as the capacity of Music Hall, where the lecture is to be given. Heretofore the price of admission to Mr. Beecher's lectures has been put at a high figure on account of the great demand for seats and the moderate capacity of the places where the lectures were given. Music Hall is so large that popular prices of admission are justified. The lecture is given under the austices of a couple of benevolent societies, and only 25 cents admission will be charged. Reserved seats at George D. Nawhall. cents admission will be charged. Reserved seats at George D. Newball's for 25 cents

With fingers sy and brisk,
With face all beaming with smile,
A mother sat in her rocking chair,
To sew for a little while,

Sew! sew! sew! There's nothing to worry or hurt, For as she's sewing she merrily sings The song of Keep's 'Parily-made Shirt

Sew! sew! sew! There's almost nothing to do:

There's almost nothing to do; But a seam to run and a band to fix, And then I am nearly through. And it's "Oh! Hurrah for Keep, I slaved and toiled like a Turk, Till I found the wonderful 'Partly-made,' Which makes a pleasure of work.'

Sew! sew! sew! Saw! saw! saw!
Oh! it's jolly to do it thus;
For the shirt is almost ready to wear,
With never a bit of fass.
Ned, and Billy, and Jim,
Jim, and Billy, and Ned;
The boyashall all have shirts this spring,
And I'll get them the "Parily-made."

Oh! men with mothers in law! The shirts of Keep, so neat and cheap,

Are the best that you ever saw. There's no more bother at home, No more commotion and dirt; No cutting, or botching, or missing a fit, When you buy Keep's "Partly-made Shirt."

With heart so merry and light, with neart so merry and light,
With countenance happy es fun,
The mother rose from her rocking chair,
For her work was nicely done.
Sol sol sol.
No more bother or dirt.

And she sweetly sanc in most musical pitch. As she finished the last of her stitch, stitch, If the poor want to keep out of poverty's ditch, If the wealthy want to be truly rich. Let them purchase Keep's 'Partly-made' blessings

Will fit so snug without blunder or hitch, As if by magic, or craft of witch— Hurrah! for the new Keep shirt!"
